A person's eyebrow position can show recognition, surprise, and_____.

Body Language: What does it say?

Much of what we say to others is communicated not only through words but, also through body language. This includes our posture, facial expressions, and gestures. Because body language plays such a significant role in communication, it's important to know what your body is telling other people. You should also know how to interpret other people's body language. Here are some examples of typical body language:

A smile is usually a sign of friendliness and interest. However, some people smile just to be polite. To get another clue from people's faces, notice how they use their eyebrows.

Recognition and greeting are expressed when a person's eyebrows do a quick up and down. If someone's eyebrows raise up, the person is probably surprised by what you are saying or doing. If someone's eyebrows are pulled down and together toward the middle, this person is probably angry or frustrated. People also use hand gestures during a conversation to describe the size of something of the way someone acted. Finally, be aware that when someone keeps pointing at you while talking, it could mean the person is angry or feels superior in some way.
